◀ Projects ▶

Cats on Code | June 2015-Current

My personal coding blog advertized as the cattiest code blog on the internets. I focus on creating content for beginner to intermediate rubyists.

Humble Hearts | May 2015

The result of an overnight hackathon benefitting a charity in need of a website makeover. My role focused on frontend development and design of the homepage and header.

Raft | January 2015

A final project from Dev Bootcamp, my team created a travel app that finds an international destination based on budget. My role included back and front end work, with emphasis on setting up the database, UX, UI and Mapbox API.

◀ Experience ▶

Flatiron School

Precollege Software Engineering Instructor

Chicago, IL | June 2015 - Aug 2015

Taught high school students with zero web development experience to build and deploy sinatra apps in intensive two-week bootcamps.

Women of Code

Software Engineer

Chicago, IL | Feb 2015 - May 2015

Worked as a fullstack developer, curriculum contributor, and personal tutor while making tech inclusive and accessible to all women through education, collaboration, and code.
